PRESIDENT M'KINLEY'S SAD HOME COMING

State of Ohio Turns Out En Masse to Greet Her Honored Dead

TOWN OF CANTON THROGGED WITH MILITARY AND CIVIC ORGANIZATIONS

Funeral Train Arrives at the Beloved Home Place and the Remains of the Dead President Lie in State at the Court House

[By Associated Press.]

Canton, O., Sept. 18.—Although the greater portion of the multitude which is expected to attend the funeral services of President McKinley is not expected before tomorrow, a large number arrived this morning, and from now until night it is expected every hour will witness the arrival of special trains. On Thursday they will come in four-fold numbers.

The trains this morning brought largely organized bodies which are to participate in the march tomorrow and during the morning the streets were filled with marching bodies of Knights Templars, Knights of Pythias, while numbers of grizzled veterans bearing the badge which marked them as members of Major McKinley's old regiment, the Twenty-third Ohio, elbowed their way through the crowds that packed the sidewalks.

Time and again, by sheer weight of numbers, the crowd pressed forward beyond the limit set for them by the police only to be pushed back as often as they pressed forward.

Awaiting the Funeral Train.

It was 10 o'clock when the first of the carriages provided for the guests by the executive committee arrived at the depot.

At 9:30 word was received through an Associated Press dispatch from the train that it was thirty minutes late in leaving Pittsburg.

Because of Mrs. McKinley's known aversion to fast running it was practically certain that the train would not arrive in Canton before 11:30. Notwithstanding this fact, members of the executive and reception committees, the escort and funeral car, were all at the depot in readiness at the time originally set.

Arrives at Canton.

The first section of the funeral train reached the Union depot at 11:20 and the funeral train proper arrived at 12 o'clock.

At the head of the local reception committee which was assembled about the station, was the entire militia of the state.

Mrs. McKinley, weeping, was taken from the train, accompanied by Dr. Rixey and Abner McKinley, entered a carriage and was driven rapidly to her home. The near relatives followed her. The remains were then lifted from the catafalque and carried on the shoulders of the body guards through the gang-way, led by President Roosevelt and his cabinet to the waiting hearse.

The surrounding soldiers were at present arms and the bugles sounded taps. The president and cabinet then entered carriages. They were followed by a guard of honor, headed by Admiral Dewey and General Miles in full uniform.

The sad procession moved in the direction of the court house. The casket was borne to the court house amid the vast assemblage of people lining the streets and packed within the court house square. There it was deposited within the central chamber.

President Roosevelt and members of the cabinet were the first to pass the bier, followed by the highest officers of the army and navy, Senator Hanna, and many others high in public life. Later the public was admitted and thousands viewed the remains.

Mrs. McKinley and the relatives did not go to the court house. She stood the trip fairly well, and soon after her arrival went to sleep in her home.

Citizens worked all night long draping their city with black and much progress was made. Arches were erected at the court house, and at various other points where the funeral cortege would pass.

NORMAL SITE IS SELECTED.

Cordell Was the Favorite Until Embry Flopped by Flynn's Order.

(Oklahoman.)

The committee named by Governor Jenkins to select a location for the proposed Southwestern Normal university has at last announced the selection of a site.

The governor's committee is composed of W. C. Tetrick of Blackwell; Luther Martin of Alva; George S. Green of Guthrie; John Embry of Chandler; and James H. Wheeler of Oklahoma City.

This committee made a tour of the towns desirous of securing the Normal and, returning to Oklahoma City, held a gabfest at the Hotel Lee, which resulted in a disagreement. Another trip was made and a meeting held at Guthrie on Monday which resulted in another failure to locate.

A trip was again made yesterday and it is affirmed Cordell was the favorite at 3 to 2. It is alleged upon good authority that Delegate Flynn, who had changed his preference from Hobart to Granite, brought direct influence to bear by threats of political decapitation, and under this pressure John Embry flopped over to the Granite side and in the final vote the matter stood three for Granite and two for Cordell, and Granite was named as the Jenkins committee's selection as a site for the proposed Normal university.

But, if the assertions of members of both the committees count for aught the matter will be tied up by litigation to the last court of resort, as the committee selected by Governor Barnes claim to be the lawful committee and they have selected Weatherford for the Normal site.

ARRANGEMENTS ARE COMPLETED

During the Service Business Will be Suspended in Token of Sorrow

Mayor Ball's Proclamation.

A heavy sorrow has fallen upon us as a people in the death by assassination of our beloved and honored president, William McKinley. His was a life so pure, so loving, so strong, so great, that he received the love and confidence of the people and he will ever live within our hearts. It is fitting that the day and hour appointed for the performance of the last sad rites over the body of our honored dead, should be held sacred by our whole country.

Therefore, I, J. E. Ball, Mayor of the city of Guthrie, do hereby appoint and proclaim Thursday the 19th day of September, as a day of mourning and memorial. Let there be, so far as possible, the suspension of ordinary business from 1 to 5 o'clock p. m., and let the people gather in the opera house at the hour of the president's funeral to do honor to his memory, and to express our common sorrow. Let the pupils of the public schools observe the hour, under the direction of the superintendent and teachers assembling by grades in the different churches for solemn service. Let this be more than a day of sorrow. Let it be one in which the fires of patriotism will burn with increased flame, and when the manly virtues of our lamented dead shall stir our highest powers of emulation.

Done in the city of Guthrie, this 18th day of September, A. D., 1901.

BETWEEN SOLID LINES OF MOURNING PEOPLE

Presidential Funeral Train Moves On Its Sorrowful Journey

WHILE MULTIPLIED THOUSANDS STAND MUTELY SILENT FOR GRIEF

Workmen of All Trades Drop Their Tools and With Uncovered Heads and Profound Silence Manifest Their Deep Respect

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 18.—(On board funeral train.)—The funeral train ran more slowly after leaving Harrisburg after midnight and daylight was dawning as it arrived at Altoona. But through the semi-darkness the forms of many people could be seen strung along the track. Without the depot a vast throng, numbering three or four thousand people, surged up to the train.

Many must have been there all night, and others had waited for hours. Extra engines were coupled on here and the train was pulled laboriously up the mountains. The morning was raw, foggy and cheerless. Mountaineers with axes on their shoulders came down from the steep steps to pay homage with uncovered heads.

Labor Pays Silent Respect.

Passing the summit at Cresson the descent began. Half of the population of Johnstown, where the first of the great steel manufacturing centers was reached, was at the track and a company of local militia stood drawn up at the engine. Men, women and children were there.

Miners with lamps in their caps had rushed forth from the tunnels at the train's appearance and the steel mills along the Connaught river were emptied. These were the men who felt that their prosperity was due to the system for which the dead statesman stood, and their loss seemed of a personal character.

Four women with uplifted hands were noticed on their knees and handkerchiefs were at the lips of others and from the smoke-covered city came the sound of church bells ringing out in sorrow. Further along the train passed a string of coke oven tenders at the mouths of the glowing furnaces, standing with their hats in hand.

At Jeanette were a thousand or more glass workers with their families.

Impressive Sight at Pittsburg.

At Wilmerding the employes of the Westinghouse Air Brake company were at the train, and at East Pittsburg, where is located one of the largest electric plants in the world, were several thousand people.

At Bessemer the huge stacks of the Carnegie steel plant were pouring forth dense columns of smoke and flame, and under this black canopy the toilers emerged in dense throngs, standing mutely with uncovered heads.

Just beyond the great mills of Braddock gave forth another multitude of grimy workmen and to the left across the river at Constead the wharves were lined with men and women.

Entering Pittsburg a wonderfully impressive sight was presented. Along both sides of the track for miles were solid walls of humanity. In some places people stood twenty deep, while the embankments were black with them. On top of freight cars was a human hedge. Overhanging bridges bent beneath their burden. Roofs of houses were lined. All stood with uncovered heads while the bells of churches were tolling.

It was just 9 o'clock when the first section of the funeral train bearing the body of President McKinley, arrived in sight of the Union station.

This train carried President Theodore Roosevelt, members of the cabinet and other cabinet officials. The second section of the funeral train was late and did not arrive at the station until 9:35. When it came into view many of the watchers placed coins on the rails to have the train run over them, and there were hundreds of these souvenirs. As the train passed, the Fourteenth and Eighteenth regiments of the National Guard presented arms and the great multitude was silent and stood with uncovered heads.

The same scenes were repeated as the train passed through Allegheny. It is estimated that not less than 50,000 people were at the Union station and 25,000 at the Allegheny depot, while the crowd that viewed the funeral train from its entrance into Pittsburg until it crossed the city line into Allegheny was not less than 250,000.

INDIAN ALLOTMENTS.

According to a letter of instructions received by United States Attorney Horace Speed from the interior department parties seeking to locate mineral claims upon Indian allotments will be ejected therefrom. After quoting from the president's proclamation bearing on the subject the letter concludes:

"It is clear from the foregoing that these lands are not in a condition that any right to obtain a title thereto under the mineral laws may now be lawfully initiated or that they may be occupied for that purpose. Any entry thereon or occupancy thereof for the purpose of acquiring title thereto under the mineral laws is unauthorized and in direct violation of the law and the president's proclamation issued in pursuance of its provisions. The person so entering or occupying them is a trespasser and is subject to removal as from Indian lands.

"You will instruct the Indian agent to give persons going upon Indian allotments without the consent of the allottee and the approval of the agent notice that they will be considered and treated as trespassers and will be removed by force if necessary, and subjected to all of the penalties of the law applicable in such cases."
